

What is corruption? It is a form of dishonesty undertaken by those who are in power, in order to abuse this power for personal gain. This action benefits him, but harms others as it is caused by his abuse of public's resources trusted him by the people. There are many reasons of corruption's existence, some of them are upbringing and low salary of those in power, and the the rare change of the ruling authorities.

Corruption is a major problem which can have negative effect of economic development, democracy, environment and social life.

Some of the solutions which countries came up with to minimize corruption are: imprisonment of people involved with corruption, public humiliation, or authority's disqualification from job. But each country has differences in their fight for corruption liquidation, which can vary by the duration of punishment, their number and overall harshness.
