

Inha University in Tashkent

Theme 13.* Globalization and Information Society

Tashkent – 2024

Outline:

- Concept of Globalization and Its Definition
- Globalization in Historical Context
- Sources of Globalization
- Advantages and Disadvantages of Globalization
- Factors of security in the Central Asia

The Concept of Globalization and Its Definition

- Globalization is economic, social and cultural acceleration of contacts among the actors such as countries and companies of the world
- The term globalization is taken from Latin (globalize), that often means the emergence of an international network of economic systems.
- The term was firstly used in the publication that entitled “Towards New Education” in 1930 which defined a holistic view of human experience in education.

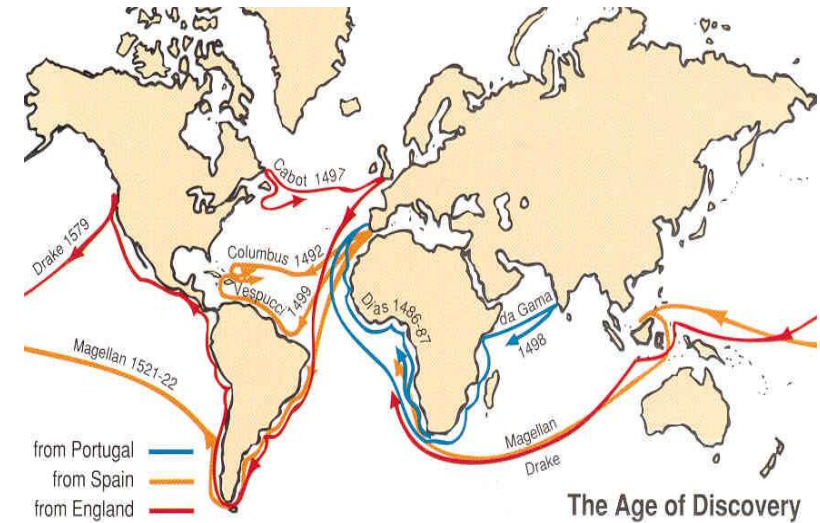

Globalization in Historical Context

- Some features of globalization appeared already in the era of antiquity (such as the historical activity of Alexander Great, the process of Hellenism).
- Thus, the Roman Empire established its hegemony over the Mediterranean, which led to a deep intertwining of different cultures and the emergence of an interregional division of labor in the Mediterranean.
- The origins of globalization go back to the 12th-13th centuries, when, with the beginning of the development of market (capitalist) relations in Western Europe, the rapid growth of European trade and the formation of a "European global economy" began.

Globalization in Historical Context

- After some decline in the XIV-XV centuries, this process continued in the XVI-XVII centuries.
- In these centuries, sustained economic growth in Europe was combined with success in navigation and geographical discoveries. As a result, Portuguese and Spanish traders spread throughout the world and occupied themselves with the colonization of America.
- In the 17th century, the Dutch East India Company, which traded with many Asian countries, became the first genuine multinational company.
- In the XIX century, rapid industrialization led to increased trade and investment between the European powers, their colonies and the United States. During this period, unfair trade with developing countries had the character of imperialist exploitation.

Globalization in the 20th Century

- After the Second World War, globalization resumed at an accelerated pace.
- It was promoted by improvements in technology that led to rapid sea, rail and air transportation, as well as the availability of international telephone communications.
- Elimination of barriers to international trade since 1947 dealt with the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) - a series of agreements between the major capitalist and developing countries. Later, in 1995, 75 participants of GATT formed the World Trade Organization (WTO).

Regional economic integration zones

- There are also large regional economic integration zones.
- In 1992, the European Union became a single economic space after the conclusion of the Maastricht Agreement. This space provides for the abolition of customs duties, free movement of labor and capital, as well as a single monetary system based on the euro.
- Less tight integration is observed among the participants of the North American Free Trade Zone (1994): the USA, Canada and Mexico.
- Most of the former Soviet republics entered after collapse of USSR into the Commonwealth of Independent States, providing elements of a common economic space.

Sources of Globalization

- Scientific and technological progress, in particular, the development of the Internet, by means of which the distance between states is erased.
- World trade, which has become much freer due to liberal measures. Thanks to the measures taken, tariffs on trade in goods and services from abroad have decreased.
- Transnationalization, which essentially represents the exchange between countries. Transnational companies today seized the financial and information market.
- Association of cultural traditions. The media become homogeneous, globalized. English has become an international language.

The positive side of globalization

- Globalization has generated international competition. Competition, in turn, is a stimulant of production, the harder it is, the higher level of output.
- International trade is beneficial to all subjects of market relations, the creation of trade unions only accelerates the process of globalization.
- The implementation of modern technology contributes to increased productivity.
- Countries that are at the stage of development can catch up with advanced states, globalization gives them a chance to improve their economic situation and firmly consolidate themselves on the world stage.

The disadvantages of globalization

- The benefits of globalization can not be distributed evenly around the world.
- Deindustrialization of the economy - manufacturing industries lose their positions, while a flourishing sphere of services enters the arena.
- Manipulation of mass consciousness is a kind of psychological influence. With the development of the mass media, the opportunity has appeared to influence the consciousness of the masses of the whole world. It relies on such means as: television, cinema, mass art, a global network.
- Threat to national culture, identity and consciousness
- Globalization has a significant impact on the ecosystem of the world. Conflicts over the use of natural resources will not be avoided.

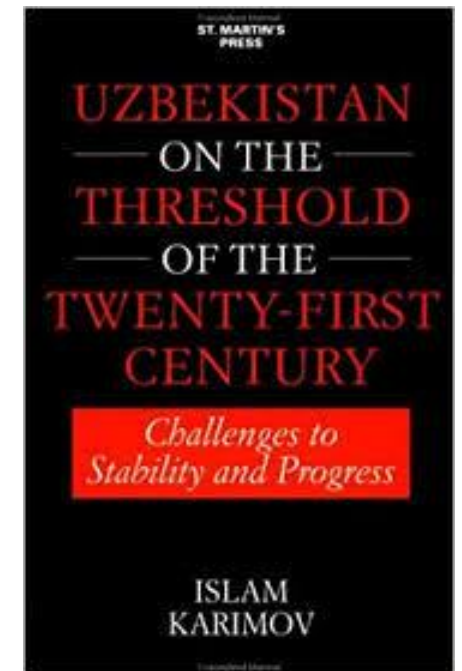

The factors of instability

The first President of Uzbekistan, Islam Karimov in his book, "Uzbekistan on the Threshold of the Twenty-First Century: Challenges to Stability and Progress" specifically indicate the factors that threaten the security in the Central Asian region, particularly in Uzbekistan.

These factors are:

1. Regional conflicts
2. Religious extremism and fundamentalism
3. Great state chauvinism and aggressive nationalism
4. Ethnic and inter-ethnic conflicts
5. Corruption and crime
6. Localism and tribalism
7. Environmental issues

The 72nd session of the United Nations

The President of the Republic of Uzbekistan Shavkat Mirziyoyev in his speech pointed out following issues:

- ❖ political activity of people of Uzbekistan;
- ❖ profound reforms are being carried out in all spheres. Their goal is to build a democratic state and a civil society, where the priority is the implementation of a simple and clear principle - "Human interests are above all";
- ❖ effective measures have been taken to eradicate child and forced labor, in cooperation with the International Labor Organization;
- ❖ the five-year Development Strategy of Uzbekistan was adopted;
- ❖ universal and virtual receptions of the President have been created everywhere;
- ❖ 2017 in our country is declared the Year of Dialogue with the People and Human Interest;
- ❖ Aral catastrophe;
- ❖ stabilization of the situation in Afghanistan;
- ❖ invaluable contribution to the development of the Islamic and world civilization of a great representatives of the Central Asian Renaissance.

The 75th session of the United Nations

The President of the Republic of Uzbekistan Shavkat Mirziyoyev in his speech pointed out following issues:

- the mutual efforts of governments, parliaments, civil society institutions; to expand the competences of the World Health Organization;
- to develop under the UN auspices an International Code of Voluntary Commitments of States during pandemics;
- social protection and health systems are being cardinally strengthened to mitigate the negative effects of the pandemic; targeted support is provided to the population, sectors of the economy and businesses. Special funds have been set up to this end;
- the growing political activism of the population and parties, the role of civil society institutions and the influence of the media;
- the gender equality policy became a priority. The role of women in public administration is growing;
- in response to a call from the United Nations to reduce the number of stateless persons, some compatriots were granted Uzbek citizenship;
- the uncompromising fight against corruption has reached a new level;
- to support Uzbekistan's initiative to adopt the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Youth;
- over the past four years, Uzbekistan's bilateral trade with neighbouring states has grown almost five-fold;
- to hold the International Forum "Central Asia at the Crossroads of World Civilizations" in the ancient city of Khiva in 2021
- to establish a permanent UN commission on Afghanistan that would address the concerns of long-suffering Afghan people.
- to adopt a special resolution of the UN General Assembly declaring the Aral Sea region an area of ecological innovation and technologies

Five priority areas

- Each colors in the emblem of the Strategy of Action has specific meanings:

- 1) Blue color – Priority direction for improving the system of state and public construction

- 2) Magenta color – Priority area for ensuring the supremacy of law and further reform of the judicial authority

- 3) Gold color – development and liberalization of the economy

- 4) Red color – Priority direction for the development of the social sphere

- 5) White color – Ensuring security, religious tolerance and interethnic harmony, and constructive foreign policy

- The President of Uzbekistan by his decree of January 28, 2022, approved the Strategy of Actions for the seven priority areas of the country's development in 2022-2026.

The New Uzbekistan Development Strategy consists of 7 areas:

- The first direction is aimed at establishing a people-friendly state through the development of a free civil society.
- The second direction covers the tasks of strengthening justice and the rule of law, ensuring human dignity.
- The third direction covers plans for the development of the national economy.
- Based on the fourth direction, the issue of quality education, which is considered the most important factor in the development of human capital and fair social policy, will continue to be in the center of constant attention.

UZBEKISTAN ECONOMIC UPDATE • SUMMER 2017

- Reforms in the spiritual and educational spheres are carried out based on the fifth direction.
- The sixth direction focuses on finding solutions to global problems at the national and regional levels and harmonizing all efforts in this regard.
- In the seventh direction, the tasks of ensuring peace and security in our country and developing international cooperation are expressed. Attention will be paid to increasing the power of the Armed Forces of Uzbekistan, strengthening the military's combat readiness, physical and moral readiness.

Thank you for your attention!